Julio Cesar Abreu, who for seven years has been a mainstay in the Florida lineup, has done more than that. "He's seen a lot of different places," manager Don Mattingly said before his team left for its seven-game spring training. "But for him to sit here and say the Dominican has the best hitters, I'm not sure I'd take that personally. It's safe to say Abreu has done plenty of seeing. Last season in the big leagues, he was named AL Rookie of the Year and won the AL Outstanding Rookie Award. His average of .317 was a career high, his .961 OPS was also a career high and his 138 OPS+ was second in the AL. However, the Dominican Republic, his homeland, may be his last stop in the AL. It's always been Abreu's plan to play for the Chicago Cubs once he's cleared, but it's not his only plan. His management at Playa Del Cibao has signed Abreu to a new contract that will pay him nearly $1d647c40b
